Department officials are obtaining from employees statements of their names, ages, places of birth and States from which appointed, and whether other members of their families are employed by the Government. These statements are for use primarily in compiling the "Blue Book," but they will also form the basis for a partial redistribution of offices among the States under the laws which require the distribution of them among the States according to their population. As has been told in The World, there is much compilant of the Dartiality which has been shown to the District of columbia in the matter of appointments. Secretary Carlisie says that upon taking office he discovered that the District, which is entitled to eleven places in his department, was in fact represented by 1,155 employees, 105 times its just quota. He found also, he says, that the quotas or Maryland and Virginia were enormously overcrowded.

Investigation shows that the District has in the public service here 6,000 more persons than it is entitled to under the present consus apportionment. It has 5,168 representatives in the departments, was reasonable in the service here of the District has in the service here of the District has in the public service here and 1,756 are women. Nearly 1,000 natives of the District, in addition, are on the rolls as representatives of various States. This places the District at the head of the list with a representation of various States. The Interior Department has denied permission to educate at the Connecticut Normal Training School, Isabella Cornelius, and Onelia Indian and a graduate of the Carlisie School. The denial is based on the ground that it is better to use Government funds in giving a large number of indians an elementary education which will fit them for self-hipful labor than to give a few university training.

Great Gathering of Representative Men

reached the conclusion that to stem the tide of emigration to the United States, and in order to beget a prosperity at all approaching that which prevailed on the other side of the border, a better and closer relation between the two countries should be created. OTTAWA, Ont., June 21.—Two thousand Liberal delegates, representing constituence in convention here to build the platform upon which the Liberal party shall stand when the present Parliament is dissoived. The delegates include, in addition to all the Liberal members of Parliament, Premier Fielding, of Nova Bootia; Sir Oliver Mowat. The feature of the convention which most interests the United States is the fiscal tariff such as hardly exists elsewhere between two such as hardly exists elsewhere between two countries so closely connected physically, socially, commercially and possessing elements so essential ty each others prosperity. Following this action of Canada, simultangous with the late general election, when that policy was confirmed, came the McKiniey tarif, enacted by the United States. Although that measure has been discussed the world over as possessing exections of the most sweeping character it remained for its application to Canada to exhibit its provisions in their most exasperating form. policy laid down by the Liberal party, coupled with the resolution outlining its policy in the relations with the United States.
